About Women Make Movies

For more than 45 years, Women Make Movies has transformed the filmmaking landscape for diverse women directors and producers. Our Production Assistance Program assists women filmmakers with their productions from concept through completion with fiscal sponsorship and more. As the world's leading distributor of independent films by and about women, we amplify voices historically ignored by the mainstream media.

Filmmakers who have worked with Women Make Movies have gone on to achieve the highest levels of artistic excellence, including Emmy®, Peabody, and Sundance nominations and awards. Our films are regularly broadcast on PBS, HBO, and other cable channels. Films or filmmakers from our programs have won or been nominated for Academy Awards® for the past twelve years, including CITIZEN FOUR by Laura Poitras, SAVING FACE by Sharmeen Obaid Chinoy, and STRONG ISLAND by Yance Ford.

In the last five years alone, we've helped women filmmakers raise more than $22 million in production funds for their projects and returned more than $2.5 million in royalties to support their next works. In tangible ways, we've increased the diversity of the non-fiction film industry and assisted thousands of filmmakers in creating films that inspire social change.
